You can choose from two tours, based around folklore and ethnology. These tours are a great way to learn about the surrounding area, but also about a part of the Icelandic cultural heritage.

Full day's tour:

This tour evolves around folklore. You will learn about the mythical beings portraided in Icelandic folklore, such as elves, trolls, ghosts and monsters, as well as some of the superstition and beliefs Icelanders have clinged to over the centuries. To connect it all together you will also hear about some significant historical events. The tour stops at many of the places where these stories took place, with your guide bringing them to life with colorful narration. If you are interested in ethnology or folklore, this is for you.

Half day's tour:

This tour is along the same lines as the tour above but is shorter and concentrated around Lake Úlfjótsvatn. You will visit an elvish church, the homes of trolls and water monsters and enchanted spots.

The activity is ...

- ... Available from May to August
- ... Including a coach ride
- ... A half day's worth of fun
- ... A whole day's worth of fun
- ... Run by a guide

About the activity:

The guide for these tours is Bjarni Harðarson, a famous author and book-seller and a former editor and MP. Bjarni will not disappoint those interested in ethnology or folklore.

You will need to dress according to weather and bring packed lunch/tea.

Included is coach fare and guide.
